

EXPERIENCE IS KING

Creating and optimizing the modern contact center.

POOR EXPERIENCES ARE DRIVING YOUR CUSTOMERS AWAY

Imagine losing up to a third of your customers in a single day – for good. Scary thought, right? Well, that's exactly what could happen after just one bad experience with your product or brand.

According to a report by PwC:

1 in 3

people say they will walk away from a brand they love after just one bad experience.

54%

of people say customer experience at most companies needs improvement.

65%

of people find a positive experience with a product or brand to be more influential than ad exposure marketing campaigns.

CUSTOMERS DRIVE REVENUE, BUT EMPLOYEES DRIVE THE EXPERIENCE

Despite continuous technological advancements and automation becoming more and more prevalent, the majority of people still prefer human interaction.

3%

of people want their experiences to be as automated as possible.

64%

of people feel companies have lost touch with the human element of customer experience.

71%

of people would rather interact with a human over a chatbot or other automated process.

HUMAN AND MACHINE, NOT HUMAN OR MACHINE

Take advantage of modern technology, but offer customers the option to reach a human when one is needed! This allows your employees to be engaged when they're needed the most, so they can provide better service and glean the necessary support from the right tools. And if you truly care about the customer experience, you can't ignore the benefits of call center software.

What is call center software?

Call center software is a customer service system designed to do one thing: make every customer interaction a great one. A type of contact center software, call center solutions tend to focus on phone-based support, while contact center software as a whole can include email, instant messaging, chat and social media.

The best call center software provides queues for routing calls and reports for managers to track agent performance in real time. With the right data, managers can estimate caller demand, staff appropriately and improve phone response times – ultimately creating a better customer experience.

THE ADVANTAGES OF CALL CENTER SOFTWARE FOR THE MODERN BUSINESS

Manage incoming calls with ease

At first, a single receptionist might have been enough. But as your business grows, you'll need a team to manage call volume. Modern cloud-based call center software makes setting up your call flows and managing your queues much simpler than before.

Keep track of your team

Agents can even leverage these metrics to help them meet their own goals and targets, since they receive a real-time feedback loop on their performance.

Enhance the customer experience

Your phone support has a huge impact on user satisfaction. Rather than leave customers on the line endlessly, call center software can provide interactive prompts and business information upfront and then effectively route each call to an available agent.

Personalize your interactions

Your agents often need to access your customer relationship management (CRM) system during calls. Many call center software providers offer integrations with leading CRM solutions to eliminate toggling back and forth, saving time for agents.

73%

of people report that wasted time is the biggest downfall of an effective customer experience.

High call volume? Place calls in a queue where they can be assigned to agents based on characteristics you choose. The Contact Center lets you cycle the calls among everyone, forward to the agent who's taken the fewest calls and more. Contact Center Pro takes automatic call distribution to the next level by offering skills-based routing to ensure every interaction is handled by the best qualified agent.
